CoreFilm by PreZero US Awarded APR-Endorsed UL Certification for 100% Post-Consumer Content

Jurupa Valley, CA, 09.03.2020. PreZero US, Inc. has proudly announced their PCR product line, CoreFilm, has been awarded a UL (Underwriters Laboratories) Certification (UL 2809 ECV) to certify the 100% post-consumer content. The product line encompasses both A & B grade PCR LDPE (Low Density Polyethylene) resins produced in Jurupa Valley, California.

The UL certification is endorsed by the industry leading organization, APR (Association of Plastics Recyclers), and conforms to the ISO 14021:2016 definition. PreZero chose UL to certify its resins because of the familiarity within the industry and the assurances that it would provide buyers as a globally trusted certifying body.

“With one of the world’s most trusted brands certifying the integrity of our recycled LDPE products, our current and future customers can share the pride of our commitment to quality and sustainability every step of the way.” – CEO Hernan de la Vega

PreZero resins are derived from 100% post-consumer feedstock. Towards the goal of creating a circular economy, PreZero specializes in recovering the value of materials that have reached their end of use and reintroducing them into the value chain. It is especially valuable to PreZero to form partnerships wherein the material goes back into manufacturing goods for the company from which it was sourced.

California legislation SB270 mandates that all grocery bags must be comprised of at least 40% recycled content. Additional states have proposed or enacted similar legislation as well. The UL certification of PreZero’s PCR CoreFilm communicates to manufacturers, brand owners, and retailers that they are producing a high-quality product that contains true post-consumer material and complies with the current state, ISO, and APR definitions and regulations.

Join PreZero in building the circular economy by integrating UL certified resins into your end products.
